

1

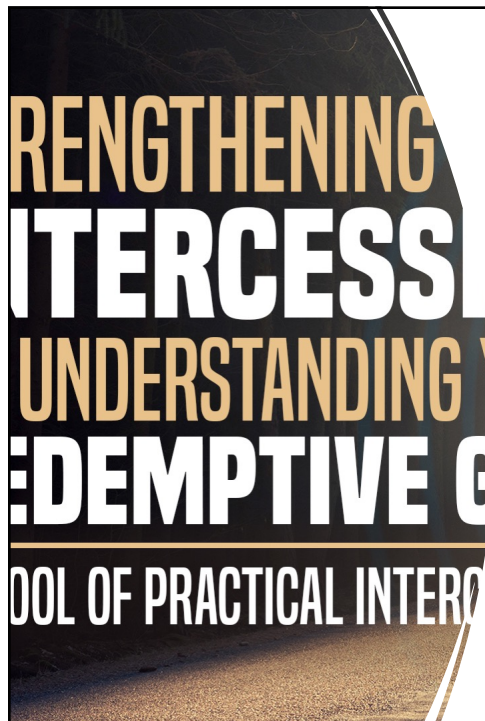

2

PROPHET

The redemptive gift of prophet takes principles of truth and applies it to solve problems and to explain purpose, plans, design, or strategy. A prophet has a strong ability to see the birthright and callings of both and the broken and call forth the things called in them.

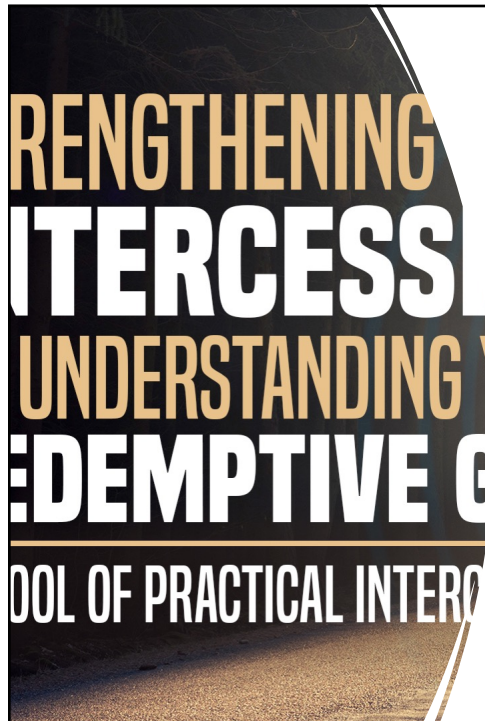

3

PROPHET

A passion to see things restored to God's or design. Your intercession may not only identify the broken issue but also the root issues as well.

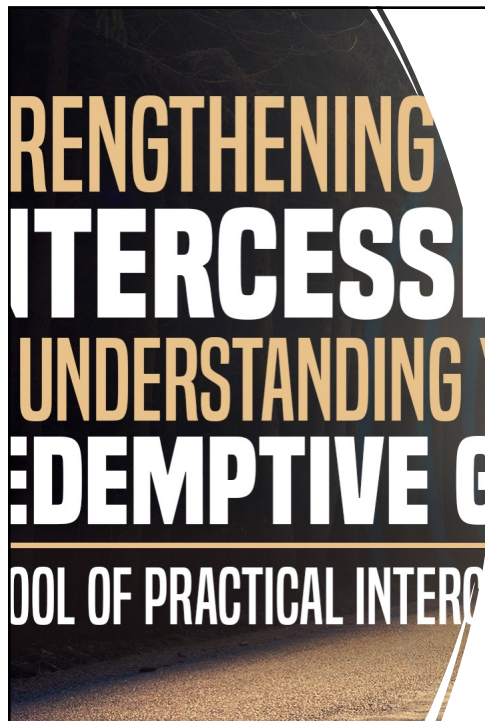

4

SERVANT

Servants prefer to be invisible and in the background. They work very hard, even hurting their own physical health. Servants find their greatest fulfillment in knowing they are life-giver who makes it possible for somebody else to do their work.

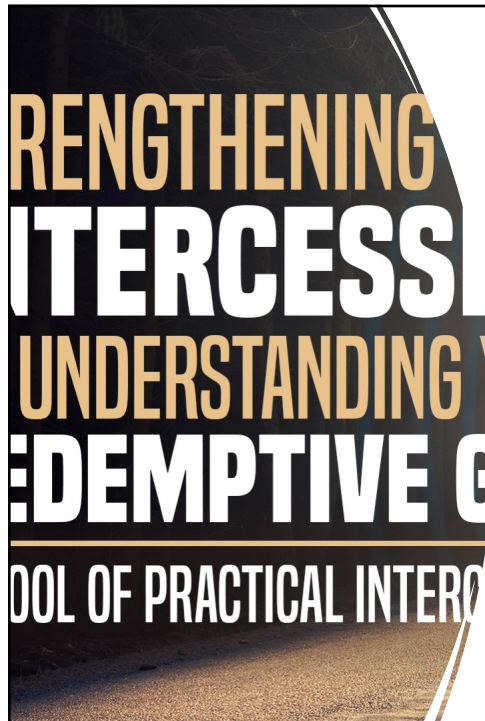

5

SERVANT

Servants prefer to be invisible and in the background. They work very hard, even hurting their own physical health. Servants find their greatest fulfillment in knowing they are life-giver who makes it possible for somebody else to do their work.

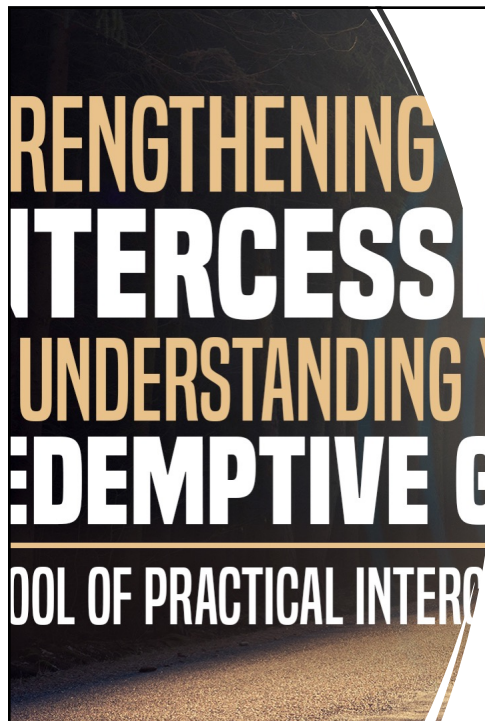

6

TEACHER

The teacher’s need to validate truth is central to their motivation. Teachers are designed to produce teaching of truth that will carry on for successive generations, but their knowledge must not be academic only. Teachers are willing to lay out the whole picture and allow the other person to choose to do what is right and be reconciled.

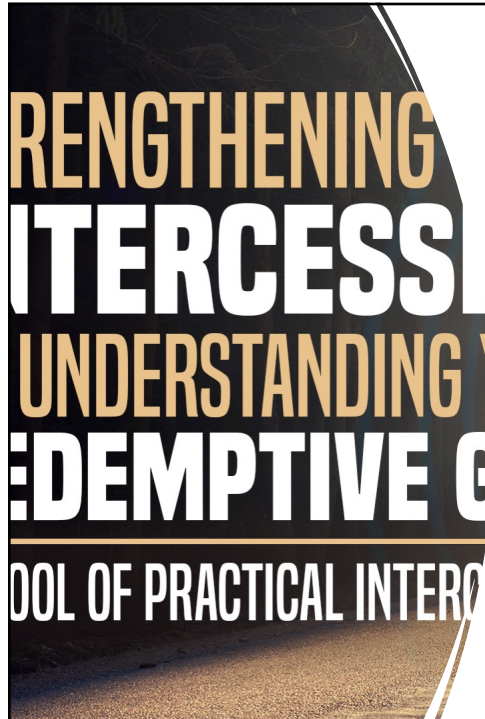

7

TEACHER

“The ultimate goal of digging for truth is to gather knowledge, reveal the Kingship of Jesus, and respond to that revelation in high, holy worship. Teacher, you fulfill your design when you step out in responsibility and launch into governing from the heavenly realm. As your worship (and intercession) penetrates into the throne room, you see heaven’s strategy and declare the government of God into the earth as Daniel did.” Bringing the plumb line of truth into worship (and intercession), authority rests with you to tear down the religious spirit as you actively pursue His presence.” Ruthie Young

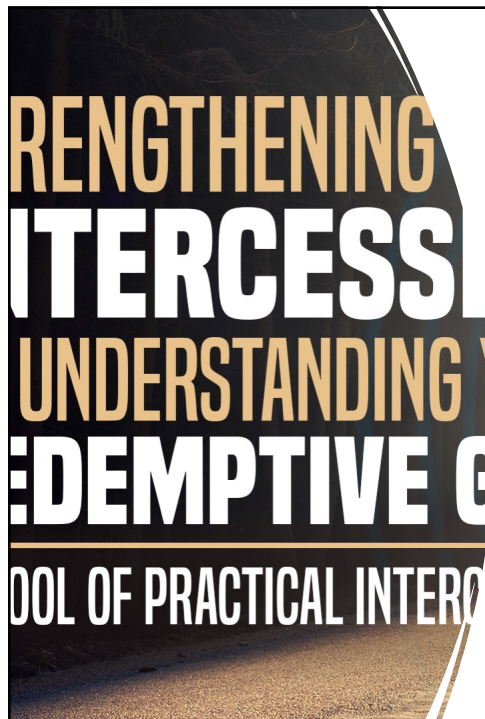

8

EXHORTER

The exhorter is called to a public ministry to help others see God in practical ways and to mobilize large numbers of people to act. The strength of the exhorter is their ability to build relationships. Where there has been disunity or division, the exhorter has a high anointing to restore harmony and reconciliation in a situation. God demands holiness in their character because their calling is great. The birthright of the exhorter is to know God and reveal him to others.

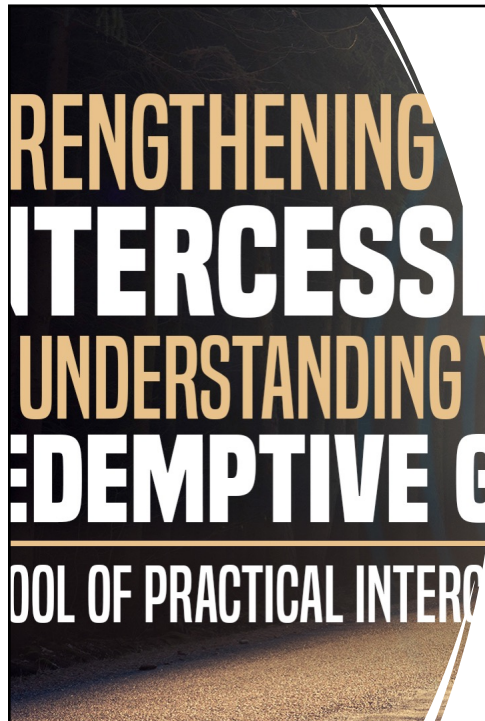

9

EXHORTER

The birthright of the Exhorter is to know our glorious God face to face and to see His knowledge, character, and wisdom revealed in the season in which he is living. They cannot give away what he does not own. Going deep with God and paying the price to know Him face to face give the Exhorter a key to an understanding of God that releases all the other gifts. Living in the fullness of their birthright requires embracing the pain of personal discomfort and the agony of waiting. This gives them the strength and wisdom to resist compromise and release the peace of Jehovah-Shalom.

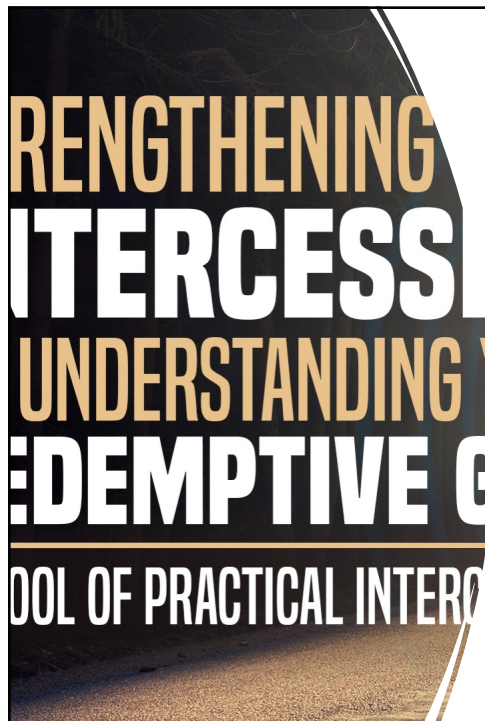

10

GIVER

A giver can take a concept or idea and bring it to birth because they desire to protect and nurture new ideas. The giver has a generational worldview and a desire to prepare for the next generation. Givers have the ability to find favor with others in terms of money. One of the greatest strengths is to get people of different views to work together toward a goal. For givers, everything hinges on their relationship with God. If givers lack holiness and intimacy with God, they will not possess their birthright.

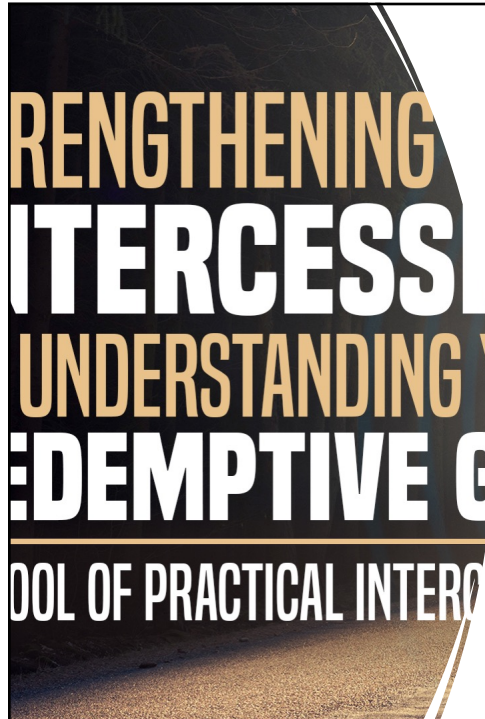

11

GIVER

“The Giver is called to connect, network, and build life-giving Kingdom community, creating a place of nurture for new life and multiplication. This new life can take many forms. It can be spiritual birth through salvation, the coming alongside new ministries in intercession, or hovering over new businesses with the needed resources to see them thrive and come to maturity. The Giver’s biggest impact is found at this point. He recognizes that although his nurture has helped bring maturity, he must now release control and allow God to shift the emerging ministry, business, or disciple from the care and nurture of the Giver into the maturity of God’s purposes.”

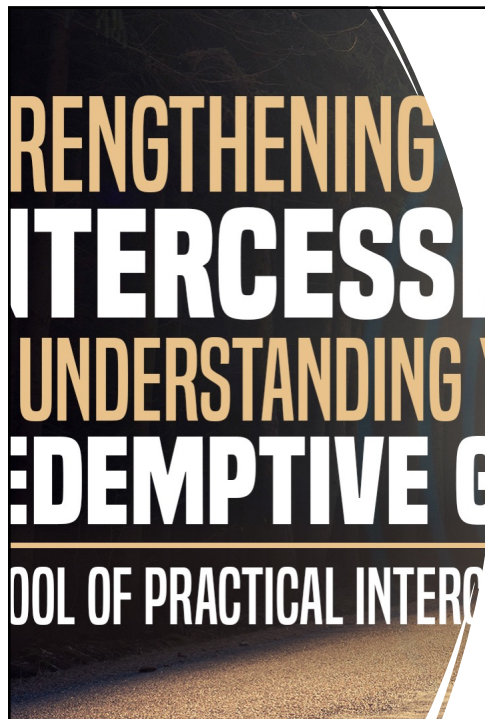

12

RULER

The ruler is God’s empire builder. The ruler is an administrator, a leader, and an implementer. Under God’s direction, the ruler can expand God’s work. They are commonly seen as people who establish organizations and put people in order. The true birthright of rulers is to establish generational blessings for their family and ministry that outlast their life.

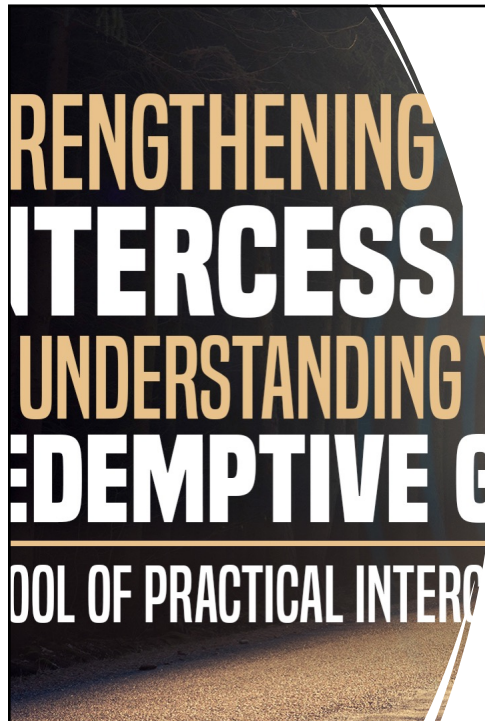

13

RULER

To manifest the heart of the Father is the call and destiny of the Ruler gift. The question the Ruler must ask himself is, “Whose kingdom am I building?” In answering this question, the principles are clearly defined. A lifestyle of righteousness, nurture, and embracing the holiness of God are the requirements for building God’s Kingdom: Integrity at the highest level, never cutting corners, or skipping details. Giving back more than he takes. The clarion call for the Ruler is loving people and using the project as a means to launch others into their destiny.”

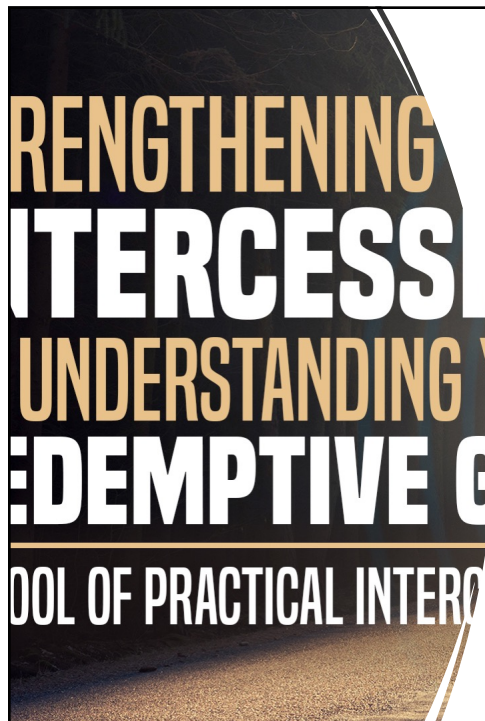

14

MERCY

Mercy has the highest authority for ministering to the wounded. They speak the language of love. Mercy absorbs pain and becomes a burden bearer. Mercy celebrates what is good, right, and true. The mercy gift is sensitive to things being out of place. The individual recognizes alignment. Mercy must realize they think, process, and feels differently than others.

15

MERCY

You were created to mediate the Father's heart into the earth. He has called You to see creation come into His divine alignment. He has adorned you with His crown to be a weapon providing His life into the earth. He has honored You by providing You a supernatural grace to carry His presence to change atmospheres and climates for His glory.

16